Alexandria Gazette

MONDAY EVENING, FEBRUARY 4.

A MILLIONAIRE SERF .- The career of M. Gunzburg, a prince of finances and the favorite banker of the Russian colony in Paris, has been brought to a close by an attack of apoplexy. His family were serfs in Southern Russia, and he began his life by hawking oranges in the street. When the Crimean war broke out he hung on the skirts of the Russian army, and extended his business to furnishing supplies to troops in the field. He displayed so much in-telligence and zeal that he attracted the attention of an officer of rank, who took him under his protection, procured for him contracts for rations for the men and fodder for the horses. He found that it was easier to get money than a reputation, and the more riches a man acquired the more envious enemies he made.

He could not get on at home, the stigma of the serf was still attached to him, and he went to Paris, where he opened a large banking house. He took a splendid hotel in the Rue de Presbourg, and furnished it magnificently in the Russian style, ornamenting his ante-chamber with a massive gold bedstead, which raised the whole army of satirists against him. He announced his intention of giving a splendid ball.
Invitations were issued, the best orchestra in Paris was engaged, and Chevet was given carte blanche as far as supper and wines were concerned. One thousand invitations had been sent out, but only eleven persons had responded, and when they went to the house and found the salons empty they made some excuse to get away, fearing that their names might be removed from the list if they remined to represent the absent ones. M. Gunghurg took the lesson to absent ones. M. Gunzburg took the lesson to heart, and was more fortunate among his own colleagues in the financial world.

The Alexandria Gazette

Already read by three generations, now enters into its SEVENTY-NINTH VOLUME.

Few newspapers in the country have lived so long; nowhere enjoyed more the confidence of people.

The GAZETTE will put forth its utmos endeavor to continue a model newspaper, and its success during this entire century in catering to the wants and meeting the wishes of the people, guarantees that with this paper promise means performance.

Washington is now the point to which all eyes look and all ears are directed. Almost at the base of the Capital, and yet in a Virginia town, amid a community which has proved its faithfulness to Virginia in more than one flery trial urrounded by the traditions and hopes of the Commonwealth, the Gazette has a position unique among journals and promises to continue of it. Its contiguity to Washington

Try precedence over all the :, 1877, though unmarried, and har siding with him tourgence of the operations emride General Government, now of such vital mportance to the people. The proceedings of Congress will be regularly reported in succinct form for its colums, but all matters of special interest to Virginia will be given in detail. Two gentlemen connected with the paper are constantly at the Federal capital, and the Wash ington news of the Gazette has for a long time been the fountain of Washington news for the

As the interests of the people mainly centre at home, no pains will be spared to chronicle al matters occurring in the city and neighborhood carefully excluding unseemly expressions or gross narrative as unfit for a journal that is treasured at many thousand hearthstones of Virginia.

From the State Capital it will receive early and accurate accounts of the proceedings of the General Assembly and of all the operations of the State government likely to interest the peo-

Especial attention will be devoted to presenting, as well from original sources of information as from its exchanges, the news of Virginia. Concisely and completely it will give the news of the world. In its Commercial columns the especial feature will be promptness and accuracy. The farmers, drovers and commercial people of the State know they MAY DEPEND upon the Gazette. Early and reliable reports of the Grain, Cattle, Grocery and other markets will be furnished, and the prices and position of the stocks, which are the subjects of business transactions in this section of the country, carefully quoted.

The continual favors of thoes who have once used the Gazette as an advertising medium is a warrant for saying that it pays to advertise in its

During all this period its prominent object has been to advance the interests of the people of whose life it is the daily chronicle. Its fortunes the nicest thing out.—Scroll Saw Blades, doz. for 50 cents; Sand Paper, Glue and have been their fortunes; it has shared their prosperity and suffered in their disasters. Its inspiration has been the desire to forward the best interests of the community in which it is located, and its own prosperity is, as it has been purposely made, inseparable from that of the community it aims to represent. When they grow rich it hopes for a reward commensurate with its labors. While they are poor it expects to work with them and for them, expecting to make their success the measure of its own.
